

We would like to share with you one of the success stories in the hospital market in the US.

On Thursday February 8th there was a Press Conference at Gaylord Hospital in Wallingford

Connecticut, USA and the purpose of this Press Conference was for Gaylord Hospital to thank the Connecticut Health Association for a grant the hospital received. Part of the grant money was spent on the purchase of Flight 60 Ventilators. After a successful clinical trial, we discussed partnering with this hospital for future beta testing and working with Flight to improve the ease of ambulation of ventilated patients. We are now partners with Gaylord Hospital. Gaylord will work on a study featuring our Volume Guaranteed Modes during patient weaning process.

This is a very proud moment for Flight Medical. We are not just another manufacturer and vendor, but a special manufacturer and special vendor that bring many levels of value to our end user customers. That is what it is about: adding value through technology and customer care.

I am including links so that you may read and view the press conference. The patient on the ventilator is a quadriplegic. Fox News in Hartford Connecticut aired the story.
